

Cultural Diversity Ambassador (CDA) Presents:Nepal Service Trip: Rural Technologies Transfer Project 2010

Have you ever asked yourself what are you want to achieve during your university life? Perhaps you are busy going to lectures, working for various student projects, and having fun at the same time, but have you ever asked yourself if you are aware of issues going on in other parts of our world?

The main aim of this project is to make a slight impact by addressing what the local villagers need the most, we will be building stoves and pot-in-pot coolers (more information will be discussed in the interview), of which will benefit the locals in aspects such as health, transportation and food preservation. This is

We started this project for a few aims:

- 1) To transfer technologies that are needed by the local villagers of Nepal
- 2) To be aware of such issues going on in the world, taking Nepal as a case study
