

Internationalisation, Muse and the Beautiful Game

Football has never been just a sport, but rather a passion shared by tens of millions of fans and players around the world. As such it has embodied the spirit of internationalisation long before the term gained its present currency, spreading the qualities of competitiveness, teamwork and sportsmanship past national borders and throughout the global community.

IHP's Dr Jonathan Maxwell (centre, back to camera) cuts to the chase.

Internationalisation came into play, quite literally, at HKU on Sunday, 4th March as members of the award-winning UK rock band Muse took on HKU students in a friendly football match at the Stanley Ho Sports Centre grounds. The event was organised by the Institute of Human Performance, on the initiation of the band's managers. At the end of the play, HKU students won a narrow victory of 6:5 over the visitors.

HKU student Lee Chun Pong and Muse bassist Christopher Wolstenholme share a laugh.
